摘要

The purposes of correctional school are helping students correct their aberration, teaching students moral and knowledge and strengthening their adjustability of life.

This study was to explore the curriculums development and design in correctional school nowadays and the possible trend for the use as curriculums development and design reference. We hope the students could improve their behavior through those designed curriculums, forming a better habit and strengthen their adjustability.

For those approaches, the correctional school should take the followings as rules --- through education as words, through environment as vision, through action as example, through counseling and assistance as love. As those rules to design curriculums, the students would enlighten their love and their promise of future.
