

組織的自主性-以軍人之友社為例

石振國, 王宏男

行政管理學系

人文社會學院

chenkuo@chu.edu.tw

摘要

With the global society revolution, people gradually realized the importance of the cooperation between governmental organizations, and the authoritarian government transformation after democracy, such official color strong social organizations, With the government system after the reform, in the absence of the past authoritarian era and political party support, How to keep forward? in the Forty years of the republic of China, established of some social associations, like Women's federation, JiuGuoTuan and Friendship Armed Forces Association. There are some related research about the Women's federation and JiuGuoTuan, but still lack of the Friendship Armed Forces Association information. Accordingly, the purpose is through this research, in which to make up for its imperfections. This article, depends on the history system theory indicates balance, path according to concept, and the theory of organizational change which internal assessment, to explain the Friendship Armed Forces Association from start period, restructuring period, transition and organizational career management period, in the personnel, financial, organizational structure and the articles of association, the produced during the change, supplemented by literature review, historical research, case studies and depth interviews and other methods, make a systematic analysis for the Friendship Armed Forces Association. The research results show that there are four major turning point, the personnel is important to the transition period, the financial is important to the organizational career management period, the structure of the organization is important to the restructuring period, and the articles of association is important to the transition period, etc. the Friendship Armed Forces Association rely on the government and the society from the start period and the restructuring period. Gradually moving towards the transition period and organizational career management period, become independent social organizations.

關鍵字：The Friendship Armed Forces Association ,historical institutionalism, organizational autonomy