摘要

The rapid growth of the Internet has created a new international arena for business, expanding the opportunities to sell products and services. Many businesses are moving on-line. In order to enhance the efficiency of their transaction processing activities, online retailers need to utilize a well-designed transaction processing system. In our system, the transaction processing system is integrated with the retailer's Web side as well as accounting information system. The integrated type of design helps online retailers improve their efficiency.
