

Community Tourism Development in Taiwan—The Hsin Chu Technopolis Case

解鴻年, 張馨文

Leisure and Recreation Management

Tourism

hwchang@chu.edu.tw

Abstract

The specialization of both local culture and tourism development are becoming significant elements in facing the challenges of globalization. Therefore, and in accordance with the sustainable development principles, this research has investigated the community involvement and public participate under the community planning system in a Technopolis emphasizing in how the integration of bottom-up planning process and professional-oriented system work together in order to create better tourism oriented communities and living environment through “functional upgrading” and “quality of life development” .

Keyword : Community Planning, Sustainable Development, Community Tourism