

Developing a value-based model to predict mobile hotel reservation adoption

王秀媛

Hospitality Management

Tourism

hywang@chu.edu.tw

Abstract

Due to further supporting the overwhelming demand for reservation, a few hospitality corporations have launched mobile hotel reservation (MHR) services. This study develops a new research model that can capture both gain and loss elements influencing individual value perceptions on behavioral intention to adopt MHR. Seven propositions are developed to promote future empirical research.

Keyword : mobile hotel reservation; perceived value